Precarious Housing in Europe.
Pushing for innovation in higher education.

International Summer School Push “Precarious Housing in Europe, with focus on migrants”

Venezia 4-5,8 luglio - Parma 6-7 luglio 2022

In the context of the International Summer School *Push, a two-day program of seminars and activities has been organised in Parma. It will take place on 6th and 7th July 2022.

Following the first two days in Venice, where students will be given an overview of the international academic debate on the housing precariousness of migrants, the Parma program is intended to take the city as a case study to explore the on-going challenges for policy, at the local but also at the wider national and international level. To do so students and the Push Team will engage with scholars of the University of Parma, local professionals, activists and third sector organisations in order to share experiences and reflections and co-evaluate their activities.

Activities will take place at the Dipartimento di Giurisprudenza, Studi Politici ed Internazionali and at the premises of Ciac Onlus and Art Lab.

The two-day program is organised and coordinated by Michela Semprebon, Dipartimento di Giurisprudenza, Studi Politici ed Internazionali, in collaboration with the SSIIM Unesco Chair of the University Iuav of Venice and some Push partners: Philipp Piechura (Leuphana University and Hafencity University Hamburg), Tania Berger (University of Krems), András Vignvári and Tünde Virág (Centre for Economic and Regional Studies). Additionally, the program has been organised with the involvement of Chiara Marchetti of Ciac Onlus, Art Lab, Rete Diritti in Casa, Manifattura Urbana, Gruppo Sguardi Incrociati (Centro Interculturale di Parma) and with Vincenza Pellegrino and Martina Giuffrè of the University of Parma.
