Training Objectives

The doctoral course aims to provide both a sound cultural formation and the methodological skills that are necessary for carrying out research in a specific thematic area. Doctoral students will develop skills to pursue an original research project and to elaborate a highly qualified critical study in the form of a final doctoral dissertation.

The thematic area of Greek and Latin Philology aims to deepen the linguistic, literary and philological skills of the doctoral students and particularly to train them in academic research towards the development of a scientific study, particularly in the form of a critical edition, commentary or essay concerning the texts of ancient literatures (Greek and Latin).

The thematic area of Philosophy aims to deepen both logical and critical skills of the doctoral students and their knowledge of the history of philosophy. Doctoral students will be qualified to carry out research projects requiring conceptual analysis, historical and philological competence, and ability in developing argumentations in the fields of theoretical philosophy, aesthetics, philosophy of language, and in the fields of the history of medieval, modern and contemporary philosophy.

The thematic area of Italian Studies and Romance Philology aims to develop researchers who are competent in linguistics and philology, as well as in the theory of literature. They will be able to edit critical and commented editions of the texts of Romance and Italian literature, and to carry out innovative historical-literary and thematic analyses in various chronological areas.

The thematic area of Foreign Languages and Literatures focuses on the study of European foreign languages and literatures (English, French, German, Spanish, Russian) and, where appropriate, of their postcolonial developments. Its aim is to promote original and innovative research projects based on the most recent theoretical and methodological approaches in the disciplines of linguistics (translation, discourse analysis, the study of corpora, lexicography) and the historical and critical analysis of literature and culture from the early modern age to the contemporary period.

The thematic area of History aims at training brilliant and young Phd-students in the field of Historical Sciences, providing them with appropriate methodological skills and critical insights into the various branches of historical research. Doctoral students will be tutored in order to develop original and innovative research projects from Classical Antiquity to Contemporary Age and to face with fresh approaches different kinds of documents and theoretical problems dealing with politics, religious studies, history of ideas, social and economic analysis.

In the thematic area of the History of Art and History of Spectacle doctoral students are required to develop critical tools to be able to deal with research in the history of medieval art, or modern art or contemporary art, art critic and museology, but also in the fields of theatre history and the history of cinema. Doctoral candidates will acquire skills in reconstructing critical debates, reading different available sources and especially applying the tools for a philological reading of the image.
